IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

President Entertains Foreign Naval Officers.

LUNCHEON AT WHITE HOUSE

Rear Admiral Thierry, of France, and Baron van Asbeck, Commander of Dutch Squadron, Guests at Executive Mansion—Netherlands Minister Host at Stag Dinner.

The White House was again yesterday the center of the social stage, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt playing the part of host and hostess to the visiting foreign officers, the commanders of the French and Dutch squadrons anchored at Hampton Roads.

Rear Admiral Thierry, his chief of staff, Commander Fraubert, of the French ships, and accompanied by the French Ambassador, and Baron van Asbeck, of the Dutch ship Gelderland, escorted by the Netherlands Minister, Jonkherr van Swinderen, called on the President yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained them later at luncheon, the party meeting round the large circular table in the state dining-room, prettily decorated for the occasion with spring blossoms.

In the company invited to meet Rear Admiral Thierry and Baron van Asbeck were Mr. Root, Secretary of State; Mr. Metcalf, Secretary of the Navy; the French Ambassador, M. Jusserand; the French chief of staff, Commander Preaubert; the Minister from the Netherlands, Jonkherr van Swinderen; Rear Admiral Brownson, U. S. N., and Lieut. Commander Albert Key, U. S. N.

The Netherlands Minister entertained at a stag dinner last night for his countrymen at the legation, in M street. In the company were Baron van Asbeck and ten officers of his staff, to most of whom were invited some officers of the American Navy.

Lieut. Commander de Blanpre, naval attaché of the French Embassy, escorted the visiting French officers around town yesterday afternoon, and in the evening entertained them at the National Theater, where they heard "The Serenade." This evening they will be the guests of the French Ambassador at dinner at the embassy. The dinner will be followed by a large and brilliant reception, to which all the remaining official and representative persons of Capital society have been invited.

The officers will visit Annapolis to-morrow and lunch at the Academy there, and Friday night they will make a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon, as the guests of the Secretary of the Navy, on his yacht, the Mayflower, on board which luncheon will be served.

Chief of the social events of last evening was the opening of Washington's first roof garden, which was thrown open to the patrons at the Bolso Theater.

Edwin Arden is the leading man of the stock company there for the summer season, and in compliment to him the garden is called "The Forest of Arden." After the play last night, Mr. Arden scored the greatest social triumph which has befallen any local star of the theatrical profession, when he played the part of host to fifty guests at supper, the members of the party numbering some of the chief social lights of the Capital.

In the company, among others, were the Norwegian Minister and Madame Hauge, Mrs. Albert Clifford Barney, Mr. and Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Miss Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Mitchell, the Misses Goldsborough, Miss Lydia Loring, Miss Juliet Jarvin, Miss Mary Patten, Mrs. Condit Jarvin, Miss Wilbur Underwood, and the stars of the other theaters, Miss Estelle Wentworth, Miss Edith Bradford, with Messrs. Rothemann, Huntington, May, and Albert Parr, of the National; Misses Hilda Spong and Charlotte Walker, and Mr. Wilton Lackaye and others of the Columbia, and Miss Christy Herne and others of Mr. Arden's supporting cast.

The supper was given after the play, for which the guests held boxes, and was the finish of a delightful evening on the roof garden, the pastoral effect of which was carried out even to the picturesque background of sheep. Mr. Arden knows his Shakespeare, and accordingly had the flock of sheep in his forest of Arden. They were real live sheep, freshly washed and groomed, and each bedecked with a dainty bow of ribbon. Little Miss Imogene Taylor, the pliant daughter of the manager of the theater, was the tiny shepherdess who led the flock of sheep, which nibbled grass at one end of the roof garden; and the grass was real, too.

Capt. Henry Hugh gave a supper at Rauscher's last night for a number of naval officers from Annapolis.

Mrs. J. T. O'Dea leaves Friday for Ridgefield Park, N. J., to be gone several months, and will be at home at the Le Grand after October 1.

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor, Mr. Oscar Straus, entertained at dinner last night for Dr. Theodor Barth, editor of the Berlin Nation, and one of the leaders of the German Reichstag. The guests were M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador; Mr. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior; Mr. Edgar E. Clark, of the Interstate Commerce Commission; Mr. Neill, Commissioner of Labor; Mr. Sar-

In a chance devoted with palms and clusters of pink and white peonies, and illuminated with myriads of candles, Miss Anna M. Quill and Mr. Edward F. L. Costigan were married yesterday morning with the celebration of a nuptial mass at 10 o'clock in St. Joseph's Catholic Church by the Rev. Father Schmitt, assisted by Father George Harrington, Father Charles Bart, Father J. D. Marr, Father James Smyth, Father Ignatius Fealey, and Father Joseph L. Wiedenham.

The bride wore a modish bridal gown of white crepe de chine over tulle, trimmed with rennaissance lace, and carried a shower of bride roses. Instead of the conventional veil she wore a large white picture hat trimmed with long plumes.

Miss Helen Quill attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a dainty frock of white dotted swiss with a picture hat, and carried Bridalmaid roses.

Little Miss Loretta Ruane, a cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl. She wore a pretty gown of white lace, and carried the bride's bouquet.

Mr. Costigan was attended by his brother, John Costigan, and there were no ushers. Immediately after the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served, and reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, on Third street. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Costigan left Washington for Baltimore where the bride's grandmother, Mrs. C. H. Wilson, gave a reception to them last evening.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Costigan will take up their residence here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Marlatt are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter a few days ago. Mrs. Marlatt is very well known here, having been before her marriage Miss Helen Mackay-Smith, daughter of Right Rev. Alexander Macdonald, for a number of years rector of St. John's Church.
